EU–Russia: Building a Strategic Partnership

DISCUSSION PANEL – AULA MAGNA

Russia is the EU's largest neighbour, brought even closer by the 2004 enlargement. Strengthening the strategic partnership with Russia will continue to constitute a priority for the upcoming Presidencies, particularly in terms of a more effective EU–Russia energy dialogue in the framework of the successor to the Partnership and Co–operation Agreement and implementing the common area of freedom, security and justice. Is there any chance today to develop a new common paradigm for the relationship with Russia, based on stable rules, transparency and consensus?

Russia's Role in World Politics

DISCUSSION PANEL – AULA MAGNA

Russia is a key actor in the UN Security Council and a key ally to combat new security threats, as terrorism, non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, pollution, crime, illegal migration and trafficking. But what drives Russian foreign policy nowadays? How will Russian foreign policy evolve in the years ahead? Which way will Russia, still struggling with the fragility of its economic success, choose to face in international relations?

Chairman:

Lubomir Zaoralek, Deputy Speaker, Chamber of Deputies, Czech Republic

Participants:

Mikhail Grishankov, First Deputy Chairman, Committee on Security, State Duma, Russia

Oleksandr Sushko, Research Director, Institute of Euro-Atlantic Cooperation, Ukraine

16:45 – 18:15

Christian Values of European civilization: Views from the East and from the West

DISCUSSION PANEL – SALA MONTEZEMOLO

The intertwined notions of religion and culture have shaped the development of European civilization. The juxtaposition of the so-called Western Christian culture against the Eastern Orthodox culture has been counterproductive, and contributed to the fragmentation of Europe's potential. Europe's borders should be considered as fixed by history more than by geography. Even better, they are cultural: Europe is, above all, a system of values.

Chairman:

Andrey Klimov, Deputy Chairman, Committee on International Affairs, State Duma, Russia

Participants:

Mons. Pietro Parolin, Undersecretary of State, Relations with States, Vatican Secretariat of State, Vatican State (tbc)

08:30 – 09:00 REGISTRATION OF PARTICIPANTS AND WELCOME COFFEE

09:00 – 10:45

Foreign Direct Investments: Russia's Inward & Outward Investment Profiles

DISCUSSION PANEL – AULA MAGNA

This panel will explore various aspects of FDI, including motivations for undertaking investment, drivers and determinants of location choices and entry mode decisions. Is Russian as attractive a market as China or India? Why do international investors generally misjudge the Russian market? Where do foreign investors fit into the Russian economy? What is driving outward investment by Russian companies? How will Russian outward investment change over the coming years? Which sectors and countries will attract most Russian interest? Which role do factors such as diversification of risk and access to natural resources and capital play in outbound expansion strategies? What impact have Russian companies had on the companies they have acquired? Reforming the Russian banking system: progress and prospects. Which is the role of international and Russian financial institutions?

Chairman:

Aleksandr Dynkin, Director, Institute for World Economy and International Relations, RAS, Russia

Participants:

Victor Yermakov, General Director, Russian Agency for Support of Small and Medium Business, Russia

Giorgio Gomel, Director, International Relations Department, Bank of Italy

Andris Spruds, Head of International Relations Program, Riga Stradins University, Latvia

09:00 – 10:45

European Energy Policy and Security of Supply

DISCUSSION PANEL – SALA MONTEZEMOLO

Europe is a large energy importing region and destined to remain so for the foreseeable future. Ensuring the security of its energy supplies is principally hindered by two issues: first, the lack of a sustainable policy trade-off between the competing objectives of security of energy supply, competitiveness and environmental protection; second, a clear understanding that security of supply for an energy importing region demands first and foremost the multilateral strengthening of the global energy trading system. The panel will tackle trends in EU energy relations with Russia and the CIS, strategies and issues affecting cross-border transactions and development strategies to enhance relations with key transit states.

Chairman:

Iulian Chifu, Director, Conflict Prevention and Early Warning Center, Romania

Participants:

Vasily Zinoviev, Deputy Chairman, Committee on Energy, State Duma, Russia

Elmar Brok, Member of European Parliament, Germany

Bilateral Business Relations and Industrial Cooperation Development

DISCUSSION PANEL– AULA MAGNA

This panel brings together participants representing a broad cross-section of business sectors and official bodies of the EU, non-EU countries and Russia, in the field of energy, transport, telecommunications, information technology and space, financial services, construction and real estate. The focus will be on successful businesses seizing the opportunities in Russia, looking at pragmatic ways of strengthening bilateral business relations, especially through a more intensive and regular form of cooperation and formulation of joint recommendations of business community to the international political leadership on expanding trade, investment and industrial co-operation.

Chairman:

Reka Szemerkenyi, Strategic Adviser, MOL, Hungary

Participants:

Kira Lukyanova, Member of the Committee on the Economic Policy and Entrepreneurship, State Duma, Russia

Anton Moiseev, Executive Director, Russian – European Centre for Economic Policy, Russia

11:00 – 12:30

Beyond Natural Resources: Russia's long term Economic Prospects

DISCUSSION PANEL – SALA MONTEZEMOLO

Since the recent nadir in its fortunes, Russia's gross domestic product has expanded. Quickly recovered thanks to surging oil and gas revenues, the country has collected the third largest holdings in the world behind China and Japan. Russia's companies have expanded their foreign assets by 2.5 times to almost $60bn over the past two years. Its stock market has boomed. Russia's confidence and influence in the world have visibly swollen. How should the rest of the world deal with this resurgent Russia? Is this achievement sustainable? Are Russian long term economic prospects still dependent on oil and gas?

Chairman:

Ilya Ponomarev, Chairman, Hi-tech Development Subcommittee, State Duma, Russia

Participants:

Vyacheslav Novikov, Deputy Chairman, Council of Federation Committee on Budget, Russia

Michael Cramer, Member of the European Parliament, Germany

Anatoly Dmitriyevski, Director, Oil and Gas Research Institute, RAS, Russia

12:30 – 13:30 LUNCH

13:30 – 15:00

The Developing EU–Russia Relations in the Political and Security Field

DISCUSSION PANEL– AULA MAGNA

The European Security Strategy defines Russia as a key player on geopolitical and security issues at global and regional level. Russia has indeed a significant influence in the EU Neighbourhood and Central Asia. The EU and Russia have agreed to reinforce their mutual efforts in the area of external security as they both have a particular responsibility for security and stability on the European continent and beyond. Besides, the NATO–Russia Council continues to cultivate long–term practical cooperation while engaging in constructive dialogue on daily political issues. The panel will examine the European dimension of Russian foreign and security policy and how the “Russian factor” influences European policies towards other post–soviet states.
