“Time of New Leaders – Shaping the Future Together”

The experience of ongoing wars, a severe pandemic, rampant inflation and the various costs of the energy transition are leading us to plan more wisely and carefully for the future of international relations. We need to ensure a secure future in which peace is paramount, the voices of all groups are heard and respected, development is equitable and prosperity does not cause damage to our planet. We must also ensure that the voice of the younger generation resonates in the conversation about the shape of tomorrow.

Therefore, how should we plan our secure and sustainable future, in which there is room for everyone? Surely we should do it together, regardless of differences and across divides. How do we turn this beautiful utopia into reality? Let's try to find the answer together at the Economic Forum in Karpacz.
